An examination of what the Union Jack really means

The Union Jack – the flag of Great Britain

*Have the lambs of Christ been tricked into honoring a bold symbol of the ungodly merchants?
Who really are the royal houses of Britain and Europe, and what is the purpose of their flag?*

Greetings to the Christian house of Jacob-Israel,

This will be another controversial topic discussed and published by Faith of The Covenant Fellowship as uploaded to our website for the research enthusiast concerning our Adamic history from Eden up to our present times. This topic will lay out quite a few points of interest about the “Union Jack” heretofore not mentioned by theological academia. It has been said that beauty is in the eye of the beholder. It can likewise be stated that truth is beheld by those who have not had facts censored from them. We’re going to see that the “beautiful” flag known as the Union Jack is not as innocent or Christian as many people have been led to believe. In fact it is the exact opposite of those two attributes. Paying homage to it can be harmful to growth in God’s household.

May I respectfully say that this treatise is not meant to demean or belittle anyone in a nation anywhere who happens to be living under the jurisdiction of the Union Jack. On the contrary this article is presented to explain that we all have been captured (materially at least) by a united world power that has existed for thousands of years, is very much anti-Scripture, has a heavy dislike of the true Jacob-Israel people, and continually works through its agents to withhold and/or distort information for the purpose of confusing and dazing God’s people into submission. The standard “positive aura” attributed to the flag symbolism of the Union Jack is one such example of the adversary’s trickery. The Union Jack is not what “they” tell us it is. It is your captivity -- not your heritage. This flag is the brazen declaration of the British East India Company which was/is the world domineering mercantile system that laid the foundation of economic slavery by Mystery Babylon over the modern nations of the world. Multiple races of people have been horribly oppressed by those who own the British East India Company (BEIC), although they operate under different corporate names today. (More about the BEIC later in this essay.)

Before we begin it is necessary to first obtain knowledge of yet another controversial fact withheld from well meaning Christians --- namely the cross was never a Christian symbol but rather the cross was an occult pagan symbol that predates the arrival of Christ by thousands of years. If you the reader are not aware of this shocking news it is suggested that you first view/study our mini lessons about that important subject then return to this page and continue on with this study. Below are links to three short commentaries about the pagan cross sign adopted by the wayward churches: (grasping this is crucial to our study today)

OK, let’s begin:

For the white Christian Bible student who has correctly discovered that the white Christian people of the world (and not today’s “Jews”) are the true family and descendants of the people designated as Israel in the Scriptures, we shall begin by asking and answering a question --- Isn’t the Union Jack British flag a Christian flag that depicts the crossed arms of Jacob with the cross of Jesus Christ superimposed upon it, and therefore is a flag to be cherished as part of our Saxon heraldry? Definitely no. That is an erroneous conclusion based upon a half truth and fed to our people in a psychological ploy to convince us to accept our captivity by the world system. What the Union Jack portrays is not a Christian message of liberty within Christ’s Kingdom but rather it brags about the ancient enslavement of our Israel family by the evil world money cartel that has egotistically positioned itself “over and above” us, and thus we see their pagan cross placed over the crossed arms of Jacob-Israel upon their mercantile flag. Let’s brief over the story about the crossed arms of Jacob as we read about it in the Bible

Jacob was a son of Isaac and Rebekah, and was a twin son of his brother Esau (Gen.25:21-26). Yahweh God appeared to Jacob several times during Jacob’s life, upon which He reminded Jacob of the divine covenant with Abraham as well as changing Jacob’s name to Israel (Gen.28:10-22 & 35:9-11). Jacob fathered 12 sons whose tribes were named after them, eventually becoming the nation of Israel. The prophets used the names Jacob and Israel as parallel names to describe the people and the nation of God (Deut.33:10; Isa.43:1)

Joseph was the 11th of Jacob’s 12 sons. On Jacob’s sickbed Joseph brought his two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, (Jacob’s grandsons) to Jacob for a blessings. In blessing the boys Jacob crossed his hands laying his right hand on the head of Ephraim, and his left hand on the head of Manasseh (Gen. 48:8-20). From that ancient moment on the crossed arms of Jacob became an Israel racial heraldry sign that has appeared in many historical artifacts, banners, and pictures over the long centuries. The x is also the first Greek letter of the word Christ in the New Testament. The x represented Jacob’s people in the ancient world – the people of Jacob’s crossed arms – today’s white Christians.

Portrait -- Jacob blessing Ephraim and Manasseh

Contrary to Jacob/Israel’s heraldry sign of the crossed arms x, we find the antithesis in the pagan cross of the + (T) of the many ancient ungodly nations with whom Yahweh God had no family relationship (Ps. 147:19-20). That type of cross sign has been shown, through recorded history and relics of pagans, as being the recognized mark of the Sumerian and Babylonian god Tammuz who was the consort of the occult goddess Ishtar. We won’t elaborate here for lack of space since this subject was covered in the short studies suggested on page 2 (see). The sign of the Latin Cross used for crucifixes originated from the pagan sign for Tammuz. The crucifix is the contemporary cross of the Roman Catholic Church. The Protestant churches removed Tammuz from the Catholic crucifix, but kept the Tammuz cross as their own religious symbol upon which much Protestant doctrine is based. But the Tammuz cross was never Israelite, never Christian, and never had a thing to do with the apostolic first assemblies of the New Testament. The Tammuz cross that we see on nearly all church steeples, and on the Union Jack, is a sign of the ambition of the ungodly world system to conquer Yahweh God's Saxon Israel Christian people – Jacob's descendants of 12 tribed Israel. This is not a new story but goes back thousands of year in the conflict of nations upon the Earth. The pagan iniquitous world system had made a statement many centuries ago, and that statement was “our religion of the + will be superimposed over the faith of Jacob-Israel's ancestral X and their family covenant with Yahweh Almighty.” So what we find with the Union Jack is an old story, not a new story. It is a battle of nations. Us against them. We furthermore discover that the annals of recorded history from cuneiform, relics, carvings, and temple drawings give witness to this age long conflict between Jacob-Israel and enemy nations. Their recorded message? “We shall place our system over and above your system”. When ancient nations made carved icons or statues it wasn't just art. These relics contained a message (a story) within them which served as types of library records of events both religious and political. Ancient Assyria had a “message” for Israel and depicted it on permanent art of their day. “Us over you”. Below we can read the message of that era in the tablet relief of Assyrian King Shamshi Adad V. These stone tablets and boundary markers were like highway bill boards today. They had messages for those passing through the land.

The king is pointing to some people about his message. Can you guess who?

824 BC

The pagan cross religion over the Jacob crossed arm people. The message is in the art design and it is intentional. But to read the message one must know the history. Assyria eventually conquered Israel

This is a very early prototype of the Union Jack of the BEIC/ United Kingdom

Shown below is another example of the same encoded message we see from ancient Assyria. This time it's from Babylon, but now we're getting a little closer to the actual diagram of the Union Jack by the world elite priesthood. This is a temple stone depiction of the Babylonian Sun god Shamash. (circa 855 BC) The pagan cross is placed over top of the Jacob-Israel X. Babylon invaded Israel in the 7th century BC.

Are we beginning to connect the dots?

Jacob lived around 1800 BC. The lengthy development of his family coincided with the rise of Babylon's early dynasties. To the right is a black border marker pillar made in the reign of Babylonian King Melishipak II, era 1186 BC. It reflects the land disputes that early Israelites and Babylonians began to have, along with the message of the "cross over crossed arms" warning. Later the Babylonians considered this sign to be the Star of Ishtar the dominant Babylonian sky goddess to whom they prayed for victory over enemies. Down through the centuries Ishtar morphed into the sky goddess of the Catholic church, the false Mary in heaven, whom it calls "The Queen of Heaven" (Jer.44:18,19,25; Rev.18:4,7*)

Not only did the theme of paganism over and above Jacob's descendants find its way into the Babylonian and Assyrian cultures as well as into the Union Jack of the BEIC, another group that runs in the same circles with Saxon Israel's enemies is the Roman Catholic Church. This institution works closely with the top echelon of Mystery Babylon's world system to undermine Christian liberty. The Vatican's coat of arms shows the same motif of the pagan cross over a deliberate X design in the same style used by kings who were Israel's adversaries.*

What was (is) the British East India Company?

To answer the above question we could go all the way back to the Garden of Eden but that would take an additional 20 pages. So to keep this study a reasonable length let's just start with some background about the Venetian Empire which is approximately the time frame of the historical entrance of the money controllers into the modern era.

When the Germanic tribes attacked Rome in 586 AD the Roman aristocracy who heavily influenced the pagan Roman Empire fled to Venice on the east coast of Italy. Earlier in 146 BC Rome had conquered the Carthaginian Empire. As much as Rome's reputation was for its tenacious demeanor, even the Romans were taken back when they defeated Carthage and entered that capital city. The Romans had witnessed first hand a nation even more mean spirited than they. Thousands of infant skulls and bones were discovered from the Carthaginian religious practice of child sacrifice to their gods. The aristocracy, religious leaders, and government of Carthage endorsed the practice. Long story short --- Rome defeated Carthage, culturally absorbed its aristocracy from several Carthaginian cities back into Rome, and within a century the Carthaginian aristocracy took over the influential positions of Rome, even all the way up to the Emperor's seat. The Roman Emperor Septimus Severus (193-211AD) was a Carthaginian, along with other high ranking officials within the Empire. Severus was born in Leptis Magna today called Libya and was described by 12th century Byzantine poet/historian John Tzetzes as "Libyan by race". (Septimus Severus: The African Emperor; A.R. Birley, 2002)

Rome did not institute crucifixion as a capital punishment until the Carthaginian aristocracy promoted it within Rome's legal system. Carthage, by the way, was settled by wealthy merchants from the coastal cities of Tyre and Sidon who were descendants of Cain. These were predominantly Cainites (mistranslated as Kenites in the Bible) but they were not Jews. This distinction needs to be made since we don't want to confuse these ancient merchants with the Edomite Jewish Rothschild bankers who came along many centuries later in the evil scheme of things. The bottom line historically is that Rome's aristocratic families became dominated by Carthaginian bloodlines.

When these leading Roman families escaped to Venice upon the sacking of Rome by the Germanic tribes, they carried with them a long train of wicked reputation that earned them the name of The Black Nobility. The term does not refer to their skin color but rather to their cruel manner by which they retained their social and economic superiority wherever they settled. So the aristocracy of Venice was Roman who were Carthaginian who were Cainites. Aka: Black Nobility. This matter is discussed at length with references in audio sermon #5 of The Female Serpent Of Eden(link source MP3 page, then scroll)

As we shall see these families of Venice became the force that established the 1800's British Empire government and the BEIC whose flag we are concerned with herein.

[Brit common folk are Saxon Israelite but by this time they had been captured by "Mystery Babylon" Rev.17]

NOTES OF REFERENCES GERMANE TO THE DISCUSSION:

"The roots of the East India Company (chartered by Queen Elizabeth I on December 31, 1600 and dissolved in 1873) sprout from the European Black Nobility. The Black Nobility are the oligarchic families of Venice and Genoa, who in the 12th century held the privileged trading rights (monopolies). The first of three crusades, from 1063 to 1123, established the power of the Venetian Black Nobility and solidified the power of the wealthy ruling class. The Black Nobility aristocracy achieved complete control over Venice in 1171, when the appointment of the doge was transferred to what was known as the Great Council, which consisted of members of the commercial aristocracy, a complete triumph for them. Venice has remained in their hands ever since, but the power and influence of the Venetian Black Nobility extends far beyond its borders, and today, is felt in every corner of the globe. In 1204 the oligarchic family parceled out feudal enclaves to their members, and from this epoch dates the great building-up of power and pressure until the government became a closed corporation of the leading Black Nobility families." (continued ---)

"The European Black Nobility earned its title through dirty tricks, so when the population revolted against the monopolies in government, as anywhere else, the leaders of the uprising were quickly seized and brutally hanged. They use secret assassinations, murder, the bankrupting of opposing citizens or companies, kidnapping and rape. All the families listed are connected with the House of Guelph, one of the original Black Nobility families of Venice from which the House of Windsor and thus the present Queen of the United Kingdom, Elizabeth II, descends."

--Dr. John Coleman,

former British Intelligence Officer, The Conspirator's Hierarchy: The Committee of 300, 1991 [underline was added; also Guelph is pronounced Gwelf]

"In the very early 1990s, just as the last vestiges of the Soviet Empire were crumbling into oblivion, a friend, member of the KGB counter intelligence apparatus during an intimate dinner told me of a very powerful and secretive organization known as the Bilderbergers. Behind this secret society is a contemporary network of powerful private merchant-banking interests of medieval Venetian financier oligarchical model known as fondi. British and Dutch East India Companies, the forerunners of the Council of the 300 and the Bilderbergers are examples of these private merchant banks."

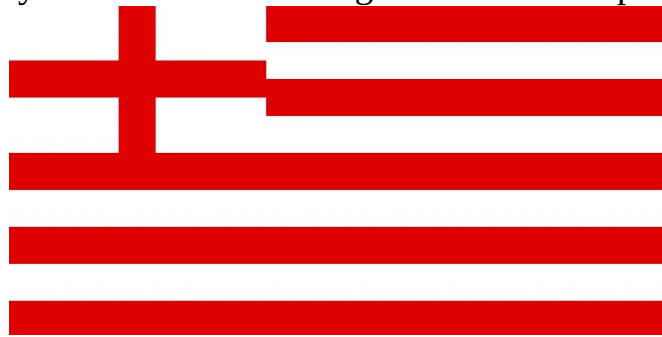

The True Story Of The Bilderberg Group: The Bilderberg Group An Offshoot of the Venetian Black Nobility (underline added - KL)

by Daniel Estulin (historian, author) 2017

As the new trade markets opened up to North America in the late 1500's the Black Nobility of Venice who had controlled the mercantile trade route from the far East into Europe realized the need to expand their trade and banking business into Northwest Europe -- upon which most of their efforts and corporate operations were transferred from Venice to London and Amsterdam. This would better suffice to gain a monopoly over the trade to the new world of the Americas while at the same time using the lucrative funds they would make to build an even more powerful trade union than they perviously achieved in Venice. Make no mistake about it, Venice was the economic ruler of the world for 1000 years, but the BEIC would surpass the Venetian markets in the course of history. This the BEIC would do by building a merchant fleet and a large corporation army. "By the early 19th century, the Company's army was 250,000 strong, larger than that of many nations."-- National Army Museum, Chelsea, London

There was also some in-fighting between the new Venetian Black Nobility who moved into Northwest Europe to expand business and the "old guard" merchants who wished to stay in Venice. However the new wave of Venetian Guelphs' Black nobility families, now firmly in control of England and the opening trade markets, were easily able to militarily squelch the older Venetian business moguls. From now on the ships of the BEIC would have the upper hand monopoly on world trade.

A new era had begun and it was not a favorable one for any nation whether it was European, Middle Eastern, Asian, or American. Bad news was on the horizon for the world and that bad new was the rise of the British East India Company. Even the somewhat earlier Dutch East India Company was squeezed out of business by the BEIC. When Queen ElizabethI gave the Black Nobility (Europe's aristocracy) their charter for the East India Company in 1600 their first flag is shown in the photo below.

This flag appeared on the corporate BEIC ships having anywhere from 9 to 15 stripes and a red cross in the canton. By now we know what that cross signifies historically – occult paganism. As a popular story British historians make the claim that it is St. George's cross, but even if this was the case "St.George's" life and legend is muddled in myth and has much difficulty in being verified. Long held as the patron saint of England, George wasn't English and he never even visited England. The earliest evidence of his existence is a 4th century script from Syria which points to him as being a Greek speaking middle easterner who served in the Roman army. The claim that George was executed by Rome for not denouncing his belief in Christ may be true, but it is also intriguing to find out that "St. George" isn't just the patron saint of England. He's also the patron saint of Venice and Genoa, two former mercantile capitals of the Black Nobility. Interesting.

Although the Union Jack as an emblem was designed in 1600 it wasn't until 1707 when the union between England and Scotland was finalized that we see the Union Jack on BEIC ships' flags as shown below:

It should also be noted that loyalists in Scotland wanted no union with England and told both the Scottish and English governments that the only new flag they would settle for would be Scotland's flag with Andrew's X overtop of the English Venetian Guelph cross. The flag proposed by the Scottish loyalists is seen below (left). The flag, of course, was dismissed by the Black Nobility's political power and influence it held by now in both nations, but the point was made by brave Scots who were aware of what was being done. (The movie Brave Heart was basically accurate concerning the Scot's feelings toward England)

Proposed Scottish Union Flag as depicted in the 1704 edition of The Present Sate of the Universe

Regardless of unsubstantiated "sainthood" of this flag the truth is that this sign existed on pagan relics dating far back to Assyrian & Babylonian times.

In 1800 there was pressure to have Ireland join the union. The finality was that in 1801 the Irish parliament was dissolved and Ireland was integrated into a union with Scotland and England with all three now becoming the United Kingdom. The old canton of the BEIC became the all encompassing flag that we now see as the Union Jack (above right)

Up until 1801 the BEIC flew their own company flag with stripes and the Union Jack in the canton. After the union of England, Scotland, and Ireland was finalized the Union Jack (full version flag) was declared to be the flag of the new United Kingdom for all British ships. The House of Hanover ruled Britain by 1714. The House of Hanover is a branch of the House of Guelph of the Venetian/Este Black Nobility. While King George III, a Hanoverian, was on the throne the 1801 full Union Jack was mandated as the official flag of the United Kingdom. (British Act of the Union 1801; Hanover royalty—entry in encyclopediavirginia; Origins of Venice, Gasparri Stefano, 2021) Note – The German royalty is Hanoverian too.

One more detail about the Union Jack before we delve more into this corrupt symbol of the BEIC and the United Kingdom. There has been a belief for the last 75 years within assemblies who know that white Christians are true Israel that the term “Union Jack”, referring to Britain’s flag, means “Union of Jacob”. In tracing the origin of this opinion the best that can be discerned is that in an earlier movement called British Israelism some author in some book made the statement without any verification whatsoever and it stuck. After the theory began within British Israelism it was quoted and re-quoted; then copied and re-copied in dozens of books and tracts. It even made its way to America in what is known as Christian Identity. But nobody ever checked sources or claims regarding this presumably “etched in stone” declaration. I’m not trying to put a damper on well meaning enthusiastic theological studies but this rumor is simply false.

There is not one shred of evidence in all of the investigations about the design of the Union Jack that the word Jack for the flag was to be taken as “Jacob”. The closest anybody could associate the flag with Jacob’s offspring is that in French the name Jacques can mean Jacob through the Latin Jacobus. To leave it at that is a real stretch. We’re not talking about France, but rather England, and the great weight of evidence points in another etymology direction that is precise and clear cut.

The Union Jack was a smaller flag than the larger national flag, and it was made to be flown on the small staff on the bow (front) of navy ships. The word “jack” in the usage of the 1600 -1800 British navy terminology was: lesser, small, diminutive, little, midget, etc. “The original maritime flag use of jack was a ship's flag of a smaller size than the ensign, used at sea as a signal, or as an identifying device.

Also later a short flagpole was placed in the bows of a ship to fly the jack, this became known as the jackstaff.” --- Oxford English Dictionary

Likewise, in uses other than maritime this meaning has carried similar connotation:

The Oxford English Dictionary has definition III.21 "Something insignificant, or smaller than the normal size". Thus we see this with words like Jack pine: A small pine species compared to red or white pine. Jack knife: Originally a small knife. Jackdaw: A small European crow noted for its size and habits. Jacket: A short garment or coat. "He doesn't know jack squat or jack sh—": He knows less than nothing. Then applicable to this subject --Jackstaff: A small flag pole on a ship . Jack of the Union Jack: A small flag flown at the bow of a ship on the jackstaff. At first there was a distinction made in Britain between the original national flag (full size) and it was called "the national flag", while the Union Jack was still the small flag attached to the jackstaff of a ship. Over time the two have merged in usage and both flags are now simply called The Union Jack (although some Brits may point out the difference.)

All countries have their ships' small "jack flags". It has nothing to do with Jacob. Below we have a picture of a Japanese merchant ship with the Japanese Jack Flag on its jackstaff.

Many nations fly their own jack/small naval flags, call them "jacks", and do not call them Jacob flags. These include: Russia, Spain, Italy, Argentina, Brazil, and most other countries, many of which are not related at all to Jacob's descendants. The reference to the British Union Jack as meaning "Union of Jacob" was born out of a misnomer. It may tickle the ears but these sort of things only go to lose credibility for the true Kingdom of God when our adversaries find the fly in the ointment and use it against us. Furthermore, the people who designed the Union Jack (the merchant family of Venetian Guelphs, Windsors, Hanovers) have never shown any propensity to unite Jacob's people. This adversarial group has historically worked for the opposite: to divide, and oppress Jacob. There is no reason to think that in Britain they now wanted Jacob to be a Union.

Legalized drug running:
How the British East India Company made its massive fortune.

Referring to Mystery Babylon God's Word tells us:

Revelation 18: 23 -- "for thy merchants were the great men of the earth; for by thy sorceries were all nations deceived." [The word sorceries in this verse is the Greek word pharmakeia which means drugs]

The BEIC isn't the totality of Mystery Babylon but in its time it was by far the leading component of the mercantile arm of the evil world system described in the Bible. Its banner was the Union Jack. Pro British royalty historical writers would have us believe that the BEIC was a bastion of "free trade" shuttling spices, teas, and silks to the West from the far East. If there ever was a misrepresentation of corporate business history this surely takes the cake. Underneath the glory tales of high seas commerce with the innocent products lies the horrible truth. The BEIC operated on a platform of trade monopoly, military solutions to company "problems", exploiting weaker nations, and manipulating the use of addictive narcotics to the point that their "drug sorcery" became a geopolitical weapon. Mainly this was achieved by the BEIC's promotion and distribution of opium.

In the early 1600's Britain began importing several items of luxury from Asia. Mostly it was the English who took a fanciful liking to the teas, silks, and spices coming from China and other places in Southeast Asia. The BEIC was the enterprise responsible for getting the goods from Asia into Europe. But a problem developed in this trade industry. The British population couldn't get enough of what China had but Britain didn't have much of what China wanted by way of mutually trading. This resulted in a huge trade deficit that threatened the commodity driven British Union and a financial collapse of the BEIC. Some serious economic plan had to be contrived that would stave off the ruin of British sea trade and financial disaster of the BEIC. There was no honest “civilized” answer to the dilemma, so true to their character the Black Nobility BEIC enterprise resorted to what had preceded in Venice for a thousand years -- extortion and underhanded means to facilitate the continuation of Mystery Babylon’s merchant empire. Two cultural societies were about to be brought to their knees by the more powerful nation operating via the Union Jack, the new flag of the transplanted Venetian mercantile system in northwest Europe.

Those two non-Saxon races of people were the Indians (India) and Chinese. Granted, these two peoples are not Scripturally inherent to the covenants that Yahweh has with Jacob/Israel, but exploiting them in the cruelest manner for financial gain is not a directive we find exalted in the Word of God. Not only that, but what Britain did to India, China, and Southeast Asia as a result of the BEIC would have long term negative results in the animosity between East and West by exacerbating it to a higher level which remains even unto this day. Don’t misinterpret the point being made here. The Asian nations are no “angels”. On occasion they have embellished their share of mercilessness. But the factor remains: give them a reason to react in a bad manner, and they will. The BEIC has historically contributed to that accumulative reason, and has done so under the flag of the Union Jack. Most Westerners don’t even know what happened with the trade industry in the 1600 – 1800’s as our schools never mention it to young students who grow up in ignorance of real time history. America is the quintessential example of a blind people who welcome the blindness. India, China, and SE Asia to this day remember what the BEIC did to them, while Americans don’t want to be bothered with learning anything about it. This will not bode well for our future.

The answer to the BEIC trade deficit with China would be found by borrowing successful ideas from other nations that were involved with Chinese trade. In this case the BEIC didn’t have to look outside of their own European aristocracy to get on track. The Portuguese were dealing with China without imploding their own trade operation but there was one caveat that facilitated it. They were supplying Chinese leadership with opium. At first the drug didn’t overwhelm China as a public problem since it was moderate scale and was an elite luxury used only as a social drug or a medicinal drug for pain relief for those who had status positions in China. The Portuguese royal government and merchants didn’t have a moral problem supplying China with drugs. This was taking place during the reign of Portuguese King Joao V who ruled from 1706 – 1750. King Joao V was born into the wealthy House of Braganza, a Black Nobility family originating in Italy. Furthermore, Portugal at this time had an alliance with England whose royalty had also been taken over by the Venetian Black Nobility.

One after another the original European royal lines (who were literal Israelites) got bred out by the Black Nobility aristocracy/royalty. Folks who still believe that today's European royalty is the Biblical House of Judah have not kept up with the historical events taking place in Europe from the 1200's through today. Modern European royalty are no longer Israelite/Judah and haven't been so for quite a few generations. But getting back to the BEIC and its trade deficit with China ----

The Portuguese had a "good" idea and the BEIC would take it to another level. The British merchants stepped into the Chinese opium trade market but did so with a much more voluminous endeavor than did Portugal. They would use India as a mega-sized farm to grow the opium then ship it to China to "pay" for the increasing demand that the British had for Chinese tea, spices, porcelain, and silk. After all, the BEIC was a mercantile industry run by the descendants of the Venetian Guelphs, Rome's former aristocracy from Carthage, Tyre & Sidon, Cainite (all in a long family line of Nodites, Gen 4). Again, these are not "Jews" but in time the elite European aristocracy did hire Khazarian/Edomite "Jews" to run banking endeavors, the most famous being the Rothschilds who became enormously wealthy working hand in hand with the Black Nobility.

[Side comment: The Rothschild banking house became so wealthy and productive for the Black Nobility programs that the European Royalty bestowed upon it the status of nobility within the high Venetian/Guelph ruling class. On the European continent Austria was perhaps the most powerful of the Black Nobility nations with close ties to the Catholic Jesuit order and the Roman Holy See. On September 29, 1822, Austrian Emperor Francis I appointed ennoblement to Mayer Amschel Rothschild's five sons. If we have ever seen the title of "von" or "de" before a Rothschild name the privileged title was given by Emperor Francis I. This enactment granted the hereditary title of "Barons" to the Rothschild family. In the United Kingdom (under the Union Jack) Anthony de Rothschild received further honors from Britain's royalty haven been given the promotion of "Baronet" in 1847, while his nephew Nathan Mayer Rothschild II was appointed a hereditary royal "Baron" title in 1855. Nathan Mayer also became the first Jew to sit in the House of Lords in the United Kingdom.]

The BEIC had no conscience of negative ramifications upon any people wheresoever or whensoever as long as a huge profit could be made by their sorcery (aka drug dealing). If you have ever wondered what the British were doing in India in the first place, now you know. Their colonization and military presence in India was to supervise and protect the huge opium poppy fields and secure the massive drug running cartel of the BEIC to China.

"British success in the pursuit of its trading advantage had far reaching consequences. Opium trafficked to China led to social devastation, in some coastal areas up to 90% of people suffered addiction and untold misery. The wars* subdued China to foreign imperial exploitation and undermined its ability to govern itself effectively and to defend its independence. They resulted in a long period of unrest punctuated by famines, revolts and arm conflicts. The number of deaths, destruction and human suffering is difficult to quantify. And enforced opium trafficking to China paved the way to modern, world-wide intractable drug crime, public health problem and the enormous waste of resources.” (Australian Museum; Dr. Stan Florek, The Mechanics of Opium Wars; 4/11/18) *opium wars

THE EXPLOITATION OF THE EAST BY THE MERCHANTS OF THE UNION JACK (who were pretending to fly a Christian flag that wasn't)

As explained earlier in this essay the BEIC needed a way to pay China for the tea, spices, silks, and porcelain that was in very high demand in the British Isles. At first the British were paying China in silver which the Chinese were glad to accept. But it wasn't long before Britain realized that all of their national silver stocks would be depleted and they would wind up with neither silver nor tea. The answer was more of a realization of a situation already ongoing instead of it being an instantaneous brainstorm. China was already involved in some opium transactions with Portugal plus growing a minimal amount of opium in China as well. China at this time in history began to open up some of its port cities to European governments and merchants. Taking advantage of this situation British operatives in China began ramping up both local distribution and more importing of opium into China. But where would the BEIC obtain enough opium to cover the then potential (planned) addiction of millions of Chinese peasants to the drug? The answer would be found in Britain's colonization of India, a nation that had the proper geography to grow huge poppy fields along with a population that would serve as farmers to do the coerced bidding of the BEIC. This, of course, was implemented by the Guelph/Hanoverian British government and the private BEIC, and was not determined by the English, Scot, or Irish people themselves. The people were politically captured.

“The state-sponsored export of opium from British India to China was arguably the largest and most enduring drug operation in history. At its peak in the mid-19th century it accounted for roughly 15% of total colonial revenue in India and 31% of India's exports. To supply this trade the East India Company (EIC) – and later the British Government – developed a highly regulated cultivation system in which over one million (Indian) farmers a year were under contract to grow opium poppies. ...” (Jonathan Lehne, Academic economist, BEIC paper, Stockholm, 2011)

The chart at right shows that by 1885 China was importing nearly 7000 tons of opium yearly. The national addiction problem was out of control and the BEIC was making huge financial profits

The coercion of India to produce opium, backed by the power of the BEIC army's presence, operated in the following manner as a well oiled machine. First, agents of the BEIC would target peasant farmers in the villages of Bengal, Bihar, and Orissa with offers of tax incentives, unpayable debt contracts, and forced production manipulations. The BEIC was the only "legal" buyer of opium from the farmers, and had sole discretion to set prices – both for the opium price and keeping wage payments at poverty rates. The opium from the fields was taken to factories owned only by the BEIC where it was processed and stacked into crates destined for China. As China's addiction to opium grew so did the coerced expansion of more opium growing in India expand. This dedication of Indian farm land to opium farming grew to the point that subsistence farming for food declined so drastically that it caused famines throughout the nation. With the famines came riots and rebellions that were put down by the BEIC army. In effect, the greed of the BEIC by its drug running obliterated any semblance of normal life in India. And all this was done under the impression that it was implemented by (what was perceived by a captured Indian population) "evil Christian people from the West" who arrived in ships with the "Christian" flag. The reality was that the BEIC and their merchants were not Christian and neither was their Union Jack flag.

While this was going on the situation in China was even worse. During the mid to late 1800's the addiction to opium in China became increasingly monumental. Britain was getting her tea but the Chinese were becoming a nation of hapless drug addicts. Opium dens had become the norm with many people's lives wasted away by remaining long hours, days, and weeks in these confines of opium smoking hiding places.

It was only a matter of time that something had to break as a result of the circumstances. Thus in 1800 the Chinese government banned both the production of opium and also the importing of opium into the country. In response to this the BEIC retaliated against the ban by organizing a clandestine ring of drug smugglers that would work to continue to get the Indian processed opium into the hands of the thousands of street dealers inside China who would supply the millions of people with opium to feed their habit. In fact the illegal smuggling years enriched the BEIC more than did the “legal” trading years of opium for tea. [Technically the BEIC had contracted with British merchants to ship the opium to offshore China where they would deliver it to Chinese smugglers]

In 1834 the Daoguang Emperor commissioned Governor General Lin Zexu with the job of ending trade with Britain. Lin closed down British factories in China and destroyed 3 million pounds of opium (owned by British merchants). Charles Elliot, Chief Superintendent of British Trade in China, appealed to London for military aid to resolve the problem. The response wasn't immediate but increased over the next several years. In 1840 the British government sent more soldiers and its navy to secure reparations of the losses which their merchants had incurred by the China ban against opium.

The military superiority of the British forces secured several decisive battles against the Chinese army and flotilla and the war ended in 1842. The outcome of what is called The First Opium War was that China had to cede Hong Kong to Britain, and also that five other coastal cities would be permanently opened to Western traders. Plus China had to pay Britain 21 million dollars in reparations for the opium it had destroyed. However technically the Chinese law making the importing of opium illegal was still on the books. So smuggling it in remained big business.

There were still plenty of Chinese who didn't like the entire set up that had befallen their nation under the BEIC. A new Imperial Commissioner, Ye Mingchen, was appointed in 1853. He once again carried out a program to wipe out opium trading with Britain. In 1856 Mingchen detained a British ship and arrested its crew, putting them in prison. Also a French missionary was executed during Mingchen's tenure. This precipitated the Second Opium War only this time France joined with Britain in the battles. The European military and navy were the superior force and defeated the Chinese. The result of the Second Opium War was that Britain and France gained a wider spectrum of concessions from China. These included: 10 more coastal cities would be opened to European merchants, missionaries would have full rights to establish religious centers in China, and opium would be legalized again.

A worse long term domino effect of the drug pushing into China on the part of the BEIC and the defeat of any attempts of China to stop it was that China realized that their old system of Imperial leadership was unable to defend the nation. This made it possible for the Chinese Communist Party to convince the Chinese people that in order to survive in the “new world” communism would offer the best option to do so. This was the real dangerous fallout for which we today can thank 1800’s Britain and the BEIC.

An additional concern developed when USA national traitors in the White House under the Clinton, Bush, and Obama administrations, sold a basically backward nation (China) our high tech rocket and computer sciences that boosted China’s military capability to the utmost. So what we have with a series of events over the last two hundred years is a situation that will “come back to bite us” big time. The Scriptural warning “The love of money is the root of all evil” (I Timothy 6:10) certainly does apply.

Furthermore, Westerners don’t really care about things like understanding the Black Nobility or how ancient pagan crosses became interwoven into our complex history. They are more concerned in having a nicer SUV than the neighbor, or the Super Bowl. Easterners however haven’t forgotten. China particularly does not want to remain backward and has become communist. There is a saying today in China from the lesson they have learned from western merchants: ‘luo hou jiu yao ai da,’. It means “if you are backward, you will take a beating.” It is this philosophy that drives modern China to excel technologically and militarily. Americans, British, Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders, and Europeans on the other hand haven’t learned anything from the activities of the BEIC or the Black Nobility. Perhaps our future sorrows from our unrepentant sins will see the birth of a new generation that will humble themselves before God and seek His guidance. That hasn’t happened yet but it remains our job to teach our children truths they won’t hear in school.

Before closing, here is another fallout from the British empire’s world wide Union Jack drug smuggling: (Rise of the American North East liberal establishment)

The old Venetian mercantile regime didn’t stop by moving from Venice to London and Amsterdam. They were clever to deploy agents into North America to keep the “Mystery Babylon” trading monopoly thriving. American northeast merchants were fast to observe the profits to be had by the BEIC’s smuggling of opium so they too jumped into the arena and made their presence known. American mercantile drug smuggling was insignificant compared to that of Britain, (about 5% of China’s opium import) but the profits were plenty sufficient in a young American nation to launch the formation of liberal family giants that went on to control leftists endeavors in the US.

The BEIC had India locked up as far as obtaining opium was concerned, but opportunity was wide opened and China with SE Asia still had a high demand for the drug. The American merchants exhibited their shrewdness and expertise at making easy millions without subjugating another weaker country to be slave farmers of opium. To begin with they didn't have the luxury of having a huge private fleet with cannons and a massive private army to bully their way onto the smuggling scene as did the BEIC. They had family owned business ships. But they had plenty of contacts with the "old world" and simply bought opium from Turkey, doubled and tripled the price, transported and sold it to Asian drug smugglers who had dealer contacts in China. They made a killing and made plenty $$$ to become politically relevant in America.

The first was the Philadelphia firm of Willings & Francis, and James and Benjamin Wilcocks. They began by purchasing opium in Turkey since the BEIC didn't have control of that nation. The transactions with dope smugglers getting it into China ran smoothly and profits were immediate and significant. Other private American family merchant businesses followed including the Cabots, James and Thomas Perkins, John Cushing, Welds, Forbes, and Delanos.

Millionaires were made over a short span of years. The Delano family is notably recognized since Franklin Delano Roosevelt, former President, was the grandson of Warren Delano Jr. (July 13, 1809 – January 17, 1898) who ran the family drug smuggling business by which the family made a large fortune dealing in illegal opium. ("Warren Delano". New-York Tribune. January 18, 1898. p. 2.) They had no problem in financing one of their own into the White House. China was made an addict nation by the BEIC and the Delanos were more than glad to partake of the "easy pickings".

We all know by now the long lasting results that FDR had on America. And all this was a related domino effect started by the BEIC and its drug running ships flying the Union Jack flag. Their motives were not Christian and neither was their flag with its ancient pagan emblem of "us over you": adversaries of true Jacob Israel, white Saxon Christianity. Perhaps in the resurrection when the fullness of Christ's Kingdom is manifested in the Earth the sons of God will design a new flag that depicts our victory over the wicked rulers of the Earth. But it certainly will not have a "+" cross on it or any other symbol that relegates the tribes of Christian Israel to be under the merchant system of Mystery Babylon. The time is coming when our King will appear.

“Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ” Titus 2:13

“And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey Him.” Daniel 7:27

“Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever. Amen.” 1 Timothy 1:17

It is not possible to honor the Union Jack banner flag ---

--- without honoring those who made it.

May Yahweh God bless and keep safe His world wide remnant in the King Christ Jesus!

Addendum note: Thanks and appreciation to the readers who have inquired if more information will be forthcoming concerning this topic. Possibly later. But if there is a “part two” it will deal with more current ongoing of international drug activity. For America, credible sources report that more illegal drugs enter the USA from Canada than from Mexico and South America although the main stream media remains silent about it. The Union Jack flag is still governmentally recognized by Canada even though the Maple Leaf flag became the official primary flag of Canada in 1965. The Union Jack flag is called the “Royal Union Flag” and serves to testify to the allegiance that Canada still maintains with the British Crown.
